

Solid school planning

The schools most successful at reducing bullying have a planning committee to plan and implement the policies that are recommended as successful practice.

	Yes	No	Review
• Does your school have a behaviour management committee that oversees the whole-school plan to reduce and manage bullying?
• Does the planning committee include Aboriginal representatives to progress Aboriginal worldviews within the school?
• Are Aboriginal staff regularly consulted to ensure that school bullying guidelines and practices are consistent with Aboriginal worldviews?
• Has a committee coordinator been identified?
• Have times been set for the planning committee to meet regularly?
• Has time been allocated for the committee and coordinator to facilitate implementation of the bullying prevention and management guidelines?
• Have areas been identified where committee skill development is required?
• Have multiple communication channels for committee members been established?
• Are Aboriginal staff invited to mediate/assist with managing bullying incidents involving Aboriginal students?			